WESTFALL

Is the Gas Victim Instead of
Mr. Stutler, of This City,
His Brother-in-law.

It was John Westfall, a brother-in-law of Avera Stutler, and not Mr. Stutler who died Thursday in Wheeling of gas asphyxiation. Confusion of names in a long distance telephone conversation caused the erroneous publication here Thursday that Mr. Stutler had been the victim.

A Wheeling dispatch of last evening's date gives the following account of Mr. Westfall's death:

As a direct result of the aftermath of the city's inability to supply artificial gas to its patrons for a long period of hours, John Westfall, aged 35, is dead, having passed away at the North Wheeling hospital at 6:45 this morning, after physicians had worked over him for hours trying to save his life.

Westfall boarded with his brother at the Fox boarding house at 2706 Eoff street. Wednesday morning he came home from the mill where he was employed and turned on the gas in his room. Because of the gas famine he was unable to obtain enough to furnish light, and he neglected to shut it off before going to bed.

During the day the gas came on and the room quickly filled causing him to lapse into an unconscious condition. He was found yesterday afternoon and rushed to the North Wheeling hospital, where an attempt was made to save his life, but without avail, as he never regained consciousness.

SOCIAL

Military Ball.

Invitations have been received here for the military ball to be held by the cadet corps of the West Virginia University, at Morgantown, Monday night, February 3. It is expected that a large number will attend from Clarksburg. Each year the military ball is looked forward to with pleasure by a number of the young people of the Monongahela valley, and this year's dance is expected to be one of the largest and best appointed that has ever been held at the university. The Morgantown New Dominion in speaking of the plans for the ball, says:

The programs have been selected and ordered. The cover design will be something novel in the way of a military ball program and the members of the committee say that it will be by far the neatest design ever used at the ball here. All arrangements are well under way and everything points to the best ball ever given at the armory. Kettering's orchestra, of Greensburg, Pa., will furnish the music; Zeigler, of Wheeling, will furnish the refreshments; and the committee will furnish the decorations, which will be by far the most elaborate ever seen in the armory.

The program will consist of a grand march, thirty dances and the home waltz. The music has been selected and is of the best and most popular to be had.

Fine Recital.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather of last evening quite a good sized audience greeted Madame Berdiche Byle and Mr. Aubrey Martin, bass-baritone, in a joint recital given at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Marcato Music Club.

Mme. Byle held her hearers enthralled beneath the spell of her genius. She is a charming young artist and made a distinctly pleasing impression. MacDowell's Eroica Sonata was played with surprising color and effectiveness and Mme. Byle's playing has an indescribable grace and beauty that fascinates everybody. Great improvement was noted in DRILLS DUSTER.

In Clay district, this county, the Hope Natural Gas Company has drilled a test well on the E. H. Moore farm through the fifty-foot sand and has a duster in that formation. In the same district the Philadelphia Company's Nos. 8 and 9 on the Lucas Brothers' farm are producing 350 barrels a day.

MEETS DEATH.

HUNTINGTON, Jan. 24—Charles Walls, a miner of Fords Branch, met with a terrible death in the Kewanee mines near Pikeville. He was crushed to a pulp by being caught under a fall of several tons of slate, 400 feet underground.

AVIATORS KILLED.

ETAMPES, France, Jan. 24—Charles Nieport and his mechanic were killed here today when their biplane doubled and fell to the earth.

the present session of the legislature.

Perhaps no man in the hotel is more dignified or reserved, and of smooth political reputation than Highland. However that may be, Highland is a receptive candidate.

Highland has led an active political life, but he can't combine business with politics, he says.

"When a campaign opens in which I am to take a part," he said, "I just quit the bank, devote my entire time to conducting the campaign, win and then quietly go back to the bank, where I work every night for a few weeks, catch up my work and continue on in the same old groove."

Highland is interested in oil and gas, is wealthy and says he thinks the time has come when a tax on gas will have to be levied. He does not want his private views on the subject to become generally known, because he feels some of his business associates may disagree with him.

After one has talked to Highland for an hour or more and the interview is over the main difficulty is in recalling just what Highland did favor. He is elusive, yet decidedly entertaining, and his prepossessing personality helps him to escape committing himself, particularly on such questions as the initiative and referendum, the recall, old age pensions and mothers' pensions.

Still, Highland is franker than most politicians. He will not say he favors a measure when he only favors it half way.

NAPOLEON

Bijou Theater.

The Bijou presents today a grand Pathé two-reel feature picture. The story revealed by these films, while laid amid thrilling and spectacular incidents in the career of the great Napoleon, centers chief interest in two brilliant officers of his army and of a woman who was loved by each in turn, one of them gaining her affections, but forgetting her in the pursuit of glory, and the other just as brave and just as successful cherishing her as his sweetheart and in his constancy as a devoted husband. The scenes call for several realistic battle scenes, requiring the massing of large bodies of soldiers, and the resulting carnage from shot, shell and bayonet.

The picture is unusually interesting, showing love, hate and beautiful dramatic scenes. The admission today is ten cents for adults and five cents for children.
